SUMMARY

- In October 2024, the VN-Index declined by 1.82% MoM, closing the month at 1,264.48 points, but still marking an increase of +11.91% Ytd. The mid-cap stocks represented by VN MID (-2.81% MoM) and small-cap stocks represented by VNSML (-1.82% MoM) performed poorly, but the VN30 index saw a more modest decline, largely supported by the banking sector.
- In October 2024, market liquidity remained below average. The average trading value reached only VND 17,763 billion per session, a slight increase of +0.1% MoM and concentrated primarily in the banking sector. The number of new securities accounts opened in October was 156,919 accounts, matching the number from September.
- Significantly increased foreign net selling. Foreign selling amounted to VND 11,010.81 billion in October (+503.6% MoM), a sharp rebound after three months of reduced activity despite smaller net withdrawals from ETF funds (USD 11 million), mainly attributed to the Fubon.
- Economic indicators in October remained generally stable, except for fluctuations in the exchange rate, which led the State Bank of Vietnam to implement measures to support the currency.
- VN-Index is expected to continue fluctuating within a narrow range, with support levels around 1,230 - 1,250 points and resistance around 1,280 - 1,300 points. The market is likely to remain within this consolidation phase until it breaks out, which could potentially happen in December 2024.
- We recommended to sell GVR, reducing the portfolio to 15 stocks. In October, the top performers in the portfolio were CTD (+5.33%) and SZC (+3.45%), while the poorest performers were GVR (-7.97%) and PVD (-7.40%).

Two PBoC Support Packages for the Stock Market

Trend of Rising Fiscal Deficit in Recent Years

Source: National Institution for Finance & Development, Bloomberg

On October 18, PBoC Announced a 200 Billion RMB Securities, Funds, and Insurance Companies Swap Facility (SFISF) Package and a 300 Billion RMB Re-lending Program to Support the Stock Market

The first package, under the form of a SWAP, allows 20 securities companies and funds to participate in the SFISF, with a liquidity quota of over 200 billion RMB. Detail: securities firms, funds, and insurance companies can use their assets, including bonds and stock ETFs, to swap for High-Quality Liquid Assets (HQLA), such as treasury bonds and central bank bills. This ensures these financial institutions have adequate liquidity to operate and grow by utilizing these highly liquid assets.

The second package is a re-lending program with an initial limit of 300 billion RMB (at a one-year interest rate of 1.75%) for 21 eligible commercial banks. This allows qualified companies and shareholders to borrow funds, enabling companies to repurchase treasury shares and major shareholders to increase their ownership stakes.

The market reacted positively to these measures. From the opening on October 18 to the close on October 31, the Shanghai Composite Index rose by +3.79%. We see this unprecedented move by the PBoC as a mechanic of direct money injection, bypassing the traditional intermediary of state treasury spending + fiscal deficit. This approach aligns with China's counter-cyclical monetary policies, which aim to resolute slower economic growth in recent years.

In the long term, for China's progress toward an organic economy driven by domestic consumption, the PBoC may need additional monetary policy tools to support budget deficits, similar to approaches seen in the U.S. and Europe.

Vietnam's Economy: Recovery After Yagi Storm

- In October, the Consumer Price Index (CPI) reached 2.89%, showing a slight increase after September's Yagi storm. This increase was influenced by food prices, with the Food + Foodstuff + Restaurant category, which is also the largest component in the CPI.
- Except September 2024, which was impacted by the storm, the Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI) has been above 50 for over the past six months, indicating positive new orders for production and services. However, overall retail growth remains less optimistic.
- Compared to the same period in 2023, credit growth in 2024 has shown positive signs, aligned with the PMI's recovery since April this year. We expect full-year credit growth to surpass last year's rate of 13.7%.
- In October, the State Bank of Vietnam (SBV) issuing 14-day bills (3.75% interest rate) and 28-day bills (4% interest rate), a action seen as supporting the exchange rate when the VietNam State Treasury announced a total demand of 1.18 billion USD in foreign currency purchases. The overnight interbank interest rate (VNIBOR O/N) has risen above 4%, to narrow the gap of swap USD/VND.
- Public Investment disbursement reached 47.2% year-to-date, still far from the target of 95%. Acceleration in the last two months of the year is expected as exchange rate pressures ease. Meanwhile, actual disbursement of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) is gradually improving compared to the same period, although 2024 is not yet over. Additionally, bank-issued corporate bonds (FI Bonds) still dominate the issuance market, with a 72% share.

The after-tax profit (PAT) of the banking sector in the first 9 months of 2024 increased by 17% YoY, with most listed banks achieving over 70% of their annual targets.

Since the beginning of the year, PAT has maintained a growth rate of over 10% YoY. In Q3, PAT increased by 17% YoY, but decreased by 7% QoQ, partly due to higher costs. The sector's CIR reached 34.3%, up 2.1% QoQ.

- NII saw a strong increase compared to the low base of the same period last year (+19% YoY). However, NOI dropped by 6% YoY in Q3 2024, primarily due to a 4% YoY decline in the service sector.
- Some banks, such as TCB, LPB and HDB have completed over 80% of their 2024 annual targets. On the other hand, VIB has only achieved 55% of its target after 9 months, and ABB is the only bank that reported a cumulative loss over the first three quarters of the year.

PAT increased yoy but decreased qoq, CIR rose

Non-interest income growth in a downtrend from its peak 4Q23

Fee & com growth in 3Q24 slightly decreased yoy with increased contribution from foreign exchange activities

NIM remains flat, under pressure to decrease due to low lending interest rates.

- The whole sector's NIM stood at 3.4% in Q3 2024, unchanged compared to the same period last year. This stability was largely influenced by the contraction in NIM among SOCBs, while there was an improvement in NIM for large private banks (MBB, TCB, VPB, HDB).
- Capital costs have sharply decreased, dropping to 3.9% in 9M 2024, and this trend is expected to continue. However, it is unlikely to have an immediate impact on banks' NIM because banks will have to reduce lending rates to stimulate credit demand.
- Total credit recovered and increased by 8,5% in 9M 2024 (same period last year was 6,2%), total deposit growth is 7,9% compared to 10,8% in the same period of 2023.
- CASA remained flat, standing at 20% in 9M 2024.

NIM remained flat for 5 consecutive quarters

Credit growth improved compared to last year's base level

Pure LDR maintains upward, CASA ratio remains flat

The NPLs increased, and the coverage ratio continues to show a downward trend.

- NPLs have risen sharply since the beginning of the year, while provisioning costs have remained moderate (thanks to the extension of Circular 02), leading to a continued thinning of the provisioning buffer and limiting the banks' ability to address bad debts in the near future. As of the end of Q3 2024, the NPL balance was approximately VND 257 trillion, marking a 20.6% year-on-year (YoY) increase. NPL ratio was 2,27% (+7 bpt qoq +48bpt yoy). The NPL provision coverage ratio decreased to 82% at the end of Q3 2024, compared to 143,2% at the end of Q3 2022.
- In Q3 2024, only the group 4 loans increased by approximately VND 2 trillion, while the other groups (2, 3, and 5) all saw a decrease compared to the same period last year.

Loan classifications in Q3 2024 decreased compared to 1H24

Bad debts have increased since the beginning of the year

LLCR has decreased from its peak in 3Q22

EARNINGS UPDATE Q3 2024

The banking sector's P/B (2012 – 2024)

Correlation between P/B and ROE of banks compared to industry average

- The P/B ratio of the banking sector has fluctuated within a narrow range of 1.4x to 1.6x over the past two years, which is below the 2012 – 2024 average level. Currently, the sector's P/B ratio is 1.5x, which is 13% lower than the historical average..
- As of the end of Q3 2024, most banks are trading at a P/B lower than the sector average, except for two state-owned banks (BID and VCB) and LPB. Among the state-owned banks, VietinBank (CTG) has the lowest P/B ratio at 1.37x.

- The real estate sector experienced its first positive growth quarter after several consecutive quarters of decline. The industrial segment showed a broad and strong recovery, partly driven by a low comparison base from the same period last year and significant surges in stocks like SIP, IDC, BCM, and KBC. However, the residential segment is still facing challenges. Many leading companies such as VHM, DXG, KDH, and NLG reported a decline in profits compared to the same period last year. On the other hand, firms like NVL and TCH recorded exceptional profits during this period.

STOCK MARKET OUTLOOK FOR NOVEMBER

In October 2024, VN-INDEX faced adjustment pressure at the 1,300 resistance level. This adjustment pressure has been persistent since the beginning of the year, as 1,300 represents a fundamental resistance level that requires strong macroeconomic drivers to break through. Over the past 8-9 months, VN-INDEX has fluctuated within a narrow range around 1,250 points, corresponding to the highest price level of 2023.

Currently, the market is supported by factors including (1) strong economic growth, (2) stable, low-interest rates, and (3) the start of the FED's rate-cutting cycle. However, some uncertainties remain, such as (1) escalating global geopolitical tensions, (2) the upcoming U.S. elections in November, and (3) business outlooks based on companies' 2025 business plans.

VN-INDEX is maintaining accumulation within a narrowing price channel. We believe that, given the mixed factors above, in November 2024, the VN-INDEX will continue to fluctuate within a narrow range, around the support zone of 1,230–1,250 and the resistance zone of 1,280–1,300. The index may exit this prolonged narrow accumulation channel in December 2024.

- In the first 9 months of 2024, TCB reported strong business performance, with total operating income (TOI) reaching VND 37.4 trillion (+28.9% YoY) driven by significant increase in net interest income (NII), which grew by +33.9% YoY. NIM in Q3 2024 decreased by 20bps QoQ to 4.1%, mainly due to rising deposit interest rates. CIR improved, decreasing to 28.4% for the 9-month period, which helped pre-tax profit reach VND 22.8 trillion (+33.5% YoY), completing 84% of the full-year 2024 target.
- Positive credit growth. TCB's credit increased by 17.4% YTD as of the end of Q3 2024, significantly higher than the overall system's growth rate of about 9% as of mid-October 2024. The real estate and construction material sector continues to make up the largest share of the bank's credit portfolio, accounting for 62%. However, there was no increase in this sector's credit exposure during the quarter.
- TCB continues to maintain its leadership in CASA deposits. By focusing on promoting high-yield automatic savings products, the bank achieved a CASA ratio of 40.4% at the end of Q3 2024, with a total deposit balance of VND 200 trillion. This high CASA ratio is a key advantage for TCB, as it helps the bank maintain a low cost of capital while improving its profit margin.
- TCB's insurance segment is currently undergoing a strategic shift. With the conclusion of its exclusive partnership agreement with Manulife, the bank is expected to incur a VND 1.8 trillion fee in Q4 2024, which will likely reduce its fee income from the insurance business for the year.
- TCB has maintained a healthy asset quality in Q3 2024. The NPL ratio stood at 1.35%, an increase of 7bps QoQ, indicating a slight rise in bad debts, but still within a manageable range. The NPL before CIC was 1.16%, reflecting slightly better asset quality when excluding some specific credit information. The NPL coverage ratio reached 103%, which is a strong indication that the bank has adequate provisions to cover potential loan losses, providing a solid buffer against any further deterioration in asset quality.

- PHR currently manages 15,084 hectares of rubber plantations in Binh Duong, Cambodia, and Dak Lak, with 4 latex processing factories having a total capacity of 53,000 tons per year. PHR is currently investing in 3 industrial real estate projects: Tan Binh (240 ha, fully occupied), VSIP 3 (20% gross profit from 646 ha to be recognized from 2024), and the expansion of Nam Tan Uyen phase 2 (345 ha, expected to start generating rental revenue from 2024).
- In 2023, PHR recorded revenues of VND1,351.02 billion and after-tax profit of VND663.74 billion. The financial situation is strong with cash reserves of VND2,143 billion. Liabilities account for 38% of total equity and 61% of owner's equity in which 57% (VND1,338 billion) represents unrealized revenue. PHR has maintained a stable cash dividend payout ratio over the years.
- In Q3, PHR revenue reached VND411.7 billion (-9.1% YoY), with net profit at VND104.2 billion (-27.8% YoY). For the first 9 months, revenue totaled VND 1,007.02 billion (+13.15% YoY thanks to higher rubber selling prices) and net profit was VND252.95 billion (-49.9% YoY). The significant drop in profit is due to the fact that in 2023, PHR recorded compensation income from the land handover for the VSIP 3 project.
- Prospects: World rubber prices for the first 10 months of 2024 increased by 59% YoY due to a high shortage of natural rubber supply, particularly from Thailand and Indonesia. The export price of Vietnamese rubber in September increased by over 30% YoY. For the period from 2021 to 2025 and extending to 2030, PHR plans to allocate 4,992 hectares for industrial zone planning, 1,018 hectares for industrial clusters (8 in Phu Giao district, 4 in Bac Tan Uyen district, and 2 in Bau Bang district), and 1,300 hectares for residential area planning. PHR will focus on completing the legal framework for the expansion of Tan Binh Industrial Zone (1,055 hectares), acting as the investor for Hoi Nghia Urban-Industrial-Service Area (715 hectares), Binh My (1,002 hectares), and Tan Lap 1 Industrial Zone (201.62 hectares) expected to be leased out starting from 2025.
